Language skills

Romanian (native); English (full proficiency); Dutch (working proficiency; CEFR B2); French (professional proficiency); Catalan (professional proficiency; CEFR C1); Spanish (intermediate).

Computers, scientific software and databases

Programming since 1985 in several languages (Pascal, C/C++, LISP...), now mostly in R (Rmarkdown) & Python, with some Stan and Julia, as needed. Professional MS Windows programmer (1997-2004), currently mostly on Linux and macOS, developing cross-platform free and open-source software such as AdhereR (<https://www.adherer.eu/>) and Language family classifications (<https://github.com/ddediu/lgfam-newick>), among others. For more info please see <https://github.com/ddediu>.

Wider impact

Population genetics and linguistic diversity

My first paper, Dediu & Ladd (2007 PNAS), has generated a lot of media coverage and scientific and public debates (more than 40,000 views, 380 citations, and an Altmetric score of 118 in the top 2% of all outputs ever tracked), as it proposed – for the first time clearly articulated and supported by quantitative data and methods – that variation between languages (in particular, the use or not of pitch distinctions to convey differences in meaning – tone) may be due to genetic differences between populations. This has been covered, for example, by the New Scientist (UK), Scientific American (USA), Science (USA), National Geographic (USA), Discover Magazine (USA), Wissenschaft.de (Germany), and CBC radio “Quirks & Quarks” programme (Canada), among others.

Human evolution and the origins of language

My work on the interplay between human evolution and the origins of speech and language (Dediu & Levinson, 2013 Front. Lang.; Dediu & Levinson, 2018 Curr. Opin. Behav. Sci.), and in particular the proposal that language and speech are very old, evolved gradually and were not specific to modern humans but were shared by our evolutionary cousins the Neanderthals and the Denisovans, fired the academic and public imagination and were widely discussed and analyzed. For example, Dediu & Levinson (2013 Front. Lang.) currently has almost 130,000 views and is in the top 1% of all research outputs ever tracked by Altmetric. Some of this coverage includes New Scientist (UK), Discover Magazine (USA), BBC News (UK), Süddeutsche Zeitung (Germany), as well as public talks at the Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History, California, US (2014) and the CosmoCaixa Science Museum, Barcelona, Spain (2017).

Linguistic complexity

Our paper Coupé et al. (2019 Sci. Adv.), showing that there is a trade-off between information density and speech rate, with languages gravitating around the same information rate of about 39 bits/second, being thus equally good at transmitting information, has captured the public's attention, having an Altmetric score of more than 2,000 and having been downloaded more than 100,000 times, and was covered by, among others, Science (USA), The Atlantic (USA), New Scientist (UK), Discover Magazine (USA), Welt (Germany), orf.at (Austria), and Sciences et Avenir (France).

Vocal tract anatomy, variation in speech sounds, and sound symbolic connexions

My research program concerning the effects of inter-individual variation in the anatomy of the speech organs on phonetic and phonological differences between languages, concretized in a series of collaborations and publications (e.g., Moisik & Dediu, 2017 J. Lang. Evol.; Janssen et al., 2019 J. Phonetics; Dediu & Moisik, 2019 Glossa; Dediu et al., 2019 Nat. Hum. Beh.; Blasi et al., 2019 Science), and complemented by the investigation of its genetic bases (Dediu et al., 2022 Hum. Genetics; Gisladottir et al., 2023 Sci. Adv.), has a wide scientific and popular impact. For example, Dediu et al. (2019 Nat. Hum. Beh.) is in the top 3% of publications ever tracked by Altmetric, being covered by Discover Magazine (USA) and wissenschaft.de (Germany), while Blasi et al. (2019 Science) has an Altmetrics score of more than 1,900 being in the top 1% of all publications (and in the top 1% of all papers in Science), being covered by more than 140 news outlets including The Guardian (UK), New York Times (USA), Arstechnica (USA), New Scientist (UK), National Geographic (USA), De Standaard (Belgium), de Volkskrant (Netherlands), Le Figaro (France), Libération (France), Le Monde (France), Pour la Science (France), CBC Radio “Quirks & Quarks” (Canada), Radio Canada (Canada) and TV ARTE “Reconnexion” (France/Germany). Some speech sounds, such as the “trilled r”, are puzzling, and their distribution among the world’s languages (often overestimated; Anselme et al., 2023 JIPA) needs an explanation: one good candidate is them having performative and sound symbolic connections. Our very recent work connecting “r” with touch across many languages (Ćwiek et al., 2024 JASA) has already been covered by, for example, The Guardian (UK), Español News (ES) and Scientific American (USA).

Adherence to treatment in real life

The open and free implementation of computer tools for estimating and visualizing patterns of adherence to treatment from electronic medical records (AdhereR; www.adherer.eu; Dima & Dediu, 2017 PLoS ONE; Allemann et al., 2019 Front. Pharmacol.) is generating a lot of interest within the health and clinical communities, with workshops (for example, at ESPACOMP 2019) and a webinar. AdhereR is being used in various real-world settings, being a component of an integrated approach involving all the relevant actors and subsystems.

Plenary and invited talks at international conferences and workshops

International workshop “Bridging the gap: Unifying approaches to linguistic evolution”, University of Zürich, Switzerland (March). Invited: Filling the holes in language evolution and change: why and how?

LOT Winter School’s “Schultink Lecture”, Radboud University, Nijmegen, The Netherlands (January). Invited: Seeing, thinking and talking about colour: from genetics to inter-individual variation and cross-linguistic diversity

International workshop “Linguistic and Cognitive Science Meet Diversity”, Max Planck Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology (EVA), Leipzig, Germany (July). Invited: Inter-individual and cross-linguis2c diversity meet... the color lexicon!

International workshop “C-LESTE” (Cross-Linguistic Explorations in Space, Time and Evolution), University of Tübingen, Germany (June). Invited: What do we need phylogenies for, if they're not the end goal? (Weak) biases and selection in language evolution. [with T. Brochhagen]

Annual Symposium “Phenotype-Genotype interactions”, Words, bones, genes and tools; University of Tübingen, Germany (December).

Invited: Genes and cultural evolution influence language at multiple levels: focusing on the vocal tract and speech.

International workshop “Computational phylogenetics and language (pre)history: Achievements, challenges and prospects”, University of Crete, Rethymno, Greece (May). Invited: What do we need phylogenies for, if they're not the end goal? (Weak) biases and selection in language evolution.

2022

International workshop “UBICS day”, Institute for Complex Systems (UBICS), University of Barcelona, Spain (September). Invited: Language and languages: complex systems (co-)evolving at the intersection of biology, environment and culture.

2021

International Symposium “Molecular Anthropology of Language: Results and Prospects”, NCCR Evolving Language, University of Zürich, Switzerland (September). Invited: Culture, environment and genes interact in complex ways to “nudge” language change and influence linguistic diversity.

Annual Symposium “Biocultural Implications: An Agenda for Integrative Approaches”, Words, bones, genes and tools; University of Tübingen, Germany (December). Invited: A biocultural perspective is fundamental to understanding language diversity.

2019

Embodied Speech International Workshop, Paris, France (April). Invited: Speech is not isolated from the body of the speakers: how variation in vocal tract anatomy affects phonetic and phonological diversity.

2017

12th Conference of the Association for Linguistic Typology (ALT12), Canberra, Australia (December). Public plenary: Variation is not noise: from genetics to language change and diversity.

4th International Workshop on Sound Change (WSC4), Edinburgh, UK (April). Invited: Constraints, affordances, biases: the gentle influence of biological variation on sound change.

23rd International Symposium on Theoretical and Applied Linguistics (ISTAL23), Thessaloniki, Greece (March). Plenary: From genes to linguistic diversity: vocal tract anatomy and cross-linguistic variation.

4th Protolang Conference, Rome (September). Plenary: Language does not evolve in a void: culture, biology and the physical environment. Strings and Structures Workshop, Universität zu Köln, Germany (May). Invited: Languages evolve: parallels & interactions between languages & genes.

Causality in the Language Sciences Workshop, Leipzig, Germany (April). Invited: Across levels and timescales: causal bridges from molecules to linguistic diversity.

Evolution of Language workshop, SMART Cognitive Science, Amsterdam, The Netherlands (March). Invited: Shaping each other: language and speech in their wider context.

2014

Human vocal development and animal communication, 5th meeting of the European Society for Evolutionary Developmental Biology, Vienna, Austria (July). Invited: Language evolution and change: the impact of modern evolutionary thinking.

Dependencies in Language Workshop, Maillen, Belgium (June). Invited: Dependencies, correlations and causality: why do we care about them?

Minerva-Gentner Symposium, Nijmegen, The Netherlands (June). Invited: Genetic stories behind village sign languages – the co-evolution of deafness with sign language.

Language, Cognition and Computational Models, Paris, France (May). Invited: The interplay between linguistic and biological evolution – computational models of genetic biases.

Dialectes Humains et Communication Animale, Grenoble, France (March). Invited: Some quantitative approaches to analyzing language dialects.

Workshop Tone: Theory and Practice, Max Planck Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology, Leipzig (September). Invited: What does genetics have to do with language? with special reference to tone.

Workshop on the Origins of Communication Systems, Konrad Lorenz Institute, Vienna, Austria (July). Invited: Genetics and language phylogeny as data sources and modeling targets.

2011

Biological Evolution and Diversification of Languages (BEDLAN), University of Turku, Finland (September). Invited: Are some structural features of language more stable than others and if so, why?

Computational Historical Linguistics Workshop, International Conference on Historical Linguistics, Osaka, Japan (July). Invited: The stability of typological features.

Biological Evolution and Diversification of Languages (BEDLAN), University of Turku, Finland (September). Invited: Language diversity and its relationships with genes, history and space.

CEE 2010 Symposium – Integrating Genetic and Cultural Approaches to Language, Queen Mary University of London (February). Invited: Are languages really independent from genes?

2007

ISHE Human Ethology Summer School, Max Planck Institute, Andechs, Germany (July). Invited: Relationships between Genetic and Linguistic Diversities: The Case of Tone.

2006

Tone: mind, brain, evolution, Konstanz, Germany (October). Invited (with D.R. Ladd): Genetic Influences on Tonogenesis and the Geographical Distribution of Tone Languages.

2017

Opening of the “TALKING BRAINS” Exhibition, Cosmocaixa Science Museum, Barcelona, Spain (October): Language Evolution and Genetics – a complex, multi-level and cross-disciplinary relationship.

2014

Santa Barbara Symposium on Human Origins II, Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History, California, US (September): Modern human dispersal in Eurasia: any linguistic traces?

Invited talks at departmental meetings and smaller workshops

2025

II Jornada de llengua i societat “Carme Junyent”, Universitat de Girona, Spain (October). La diversitat (fonètica) s’ha d’explicar: des dels gens i del tracte vocal fins a les coses que mengem [in Catalan]

2024

Software and Databases

AdhereR

<https://www.adherer.eu>

2016 – . An R package for computing and plotting various types of adherence to medication from electronic medical databases, designed and implemented from scratch with Alexandra Dima, running on all operating systems currently supported by R (Linux, *BSD, OSX, Windows), available on the Comprehensive R Archive Network (CRAN; <https://cran.r-project.org/package=AdhereR>). The source code is freely available on GitHub (<https://github.com/ddediu/AdhereR>). Currently being extended to multiple platforms (STATA, Python...) and new algorithms (e.g., polypharmacy) through collaborations with researchers in Basel, Barcelona, Stockholm, Geneva and Lyon, and we are exploring its large-scale deployment in real health care systems.

Phonetic Features and counts

<https://github.com/ddediu/phon-class-counts>

2015. A collection of R scripts that define and count feature classes (e.g., “round front vowel”) on two segment databases: Phoible (<http://phoible.org>) and Ruhlen (<http://www.pnas.org/content/112/5/1265.abstract?tab=ds>), as well as a database with the resulting feature counts. This was designed and developed with Scott R. Moisik (<https://sites.google.com/site/scottmoisik/>), is cross-platform (Linux, *BSD, OSX, Windows), and the source code, input data and output are available (mostly under GPL but portions of the input data are governed by their respective licenses) on GitHub: <https://github.com/ddediu/phon-class-counts>.

Language family classifications as Newick trees

<https://github.com/ddediu/lgfam-newick>

2015. A collection of R scripts that convert language classifications to the Newick, a de facto standard in phylogenetics, from Glottolog (<http://glottolog.org/>), Ethnologue (<http://www.ethnologue.com/>), WALS (<http://wals.info/>) and AUTOTYP (<http://www.autotyp.uzh.ch/>), also adding branch length information from various sources. It runs cross-platform (Linux, *BSD, OSX, Windows), and the source code and data (GPL except for parts of the input governed by their respective licenses) are available on GitHub: <https://github.com/ddediu/lgfam-newick>.

BayesLang

<https://github.com/ddediu/BayesLang>

2010. Bayesian phylogenetic inference software designed for language typology (written in C++, running on Linux and Windows). Source code available at <https://github.com/ddediu/BayesLang>.

GenLangCorrV4

2008 – 2009. A software platform for designing and running agent-based simulations of various types of gene-language interactions in a spatially-structured meta-population of interacting groups with complex demography and language transmission scenarios (written in C++, running on Linux).

Rgedit

2009 – 2013. A graphical interface for R (coded using Python, GTK2 and GTK3) running on Linux and *BSD. Source code freely available on SourceForge <http://sourceforge.net/projects/rgedit/> but no longer maintained.
